

ANTHROPOLOGICAL REFLECTIONS ON THE HUMAN EXPERIENCE OF DEATH IN KARL RAHNER

by Alessandro Foppoli c. p.

The following text intends to offer several reflections by Karl Rahner on the theme of death. It should be stated that this involves only certain notes of study with respect to the vast production of the author on this theme. The prospective angle of the article is limited to the description of dying as a anthropological event common to everyone, excluding successive christological and soteriological development of Rahner's death theology.
